... about me giving Seth and a few others looking for a reaction post Craig email and Louis speech? Chris liked it.

NOAA's policies on scientific integrity and communications are among the strongest in the federal government, and get high marks from third party observers. The agency's senior career leaders are free to express their opinions about matters of agency operations and science. The agency will not be providing further official comment, and will not speculate on internal reviews.
