Thanks, Michelle. Sorry about the delay in responding. I had bits and pieces of time to review throughout this week. As far as timeframe to get the notes back out, not to say that it's a standard, but we took over a month before getting the notes out from the first workshop. The sooner the better, but we want to make sure to get them right. I think there is a comment or 2 that Jeff should answer (and probably review the entire document). I responded to your comments with edits, but also added some clarifying text when warranted, because discussions may be OK, but when captured in notes, may seem awkward. Hope they help.

Good morning Garwin,

We have completed assembling the notes from last week's workshop and they are attached for your review. You will see that I have included a few comments to call out areas where I had either not captured the entire question or response, or to have you/Jeff verify that I included the correct acronym.

If NMFS/Reclamation could use track changes and send me the files then we can collate the comments and send back a clean, final draft that can be distributed externally for review. What is the timeline for distributing these to the stakeholders?

Let me know if you have any questions. Thanks!
